Session 1

Synopsis

In this discussion, we will address the common pitfalls faced by claimants when seeking to activate the adjudication process under the Building Construction Industry Security of Payment Act ("the SOP Act"). We will also look into the situation for respondents who receive payment claims, and what they can do especially when they are ambushed by a claim. Issues that will be discussed include:

- Is there a fixed date for service of payment claims? What happens when the payment claim is served out of time?
  - How can variations be properly claimed under a payment claim, and how will they be defeated?
  - Can retention be claimed under a payment claim even if the completion certificate or maintenance certificate is not issued?
  - Can a retention clause allowing for the release of payment only after the maintenance certificate is issued be an unlawful "pay-when-paid" clause?
  - How can prolongation claims and claims for loss and expense be challenged?
  - Can a payment claim/ response be served by email?
  - What are the defences to mount when ambushed with an adjudication application?
